Introduction

We present the Australian National Maritime Museum (ANMM) four-year corporate plan as required under paragraph 35(1)(a) of the Public Governance, Performance and Accountability Act 2013 and section 26 of the Australian National Maritime Museum Act 1990.

Since our establishment in 1991, our museum has been a leader in the preservation, promotion and sharing of Australia’s maritime heritage. Today, we continue to explore the role of the oceans, seas and rivers in shaping our lives and to share our nation’s maritime stories with millions of people across Australia and overseas.

This plan sets out the ANMM’s four-year priorities to build upon this proud history and set an exciting and renewed path towards a longer-term future.

The plan is both ambitious and pragmatic. It aims to bring together new and innovative ways of connecting with our audiences, our partners and the nation. However, it also clearly defines what we can achieve within the resources and four-year time-frame, and how we will evaluate our success in achieving these goals.

Our scope and activities over the next four years reach out far beyond our museum’s Sydney site. Through our programs and exhibitions we will continue to work collaboratively with local and regional communities and partners across Australia. The museum will share Australia’s unique and diverse maritime history, from the experiences of small regional communities to those on state and national scale, fostering a greater understanding by all Australians and indeed the world.

As the national maritime museum, we will continue to be a resource for the nation, leading research in maritime heritage and archaeology and sharing our knowledge with our peers and educational institutions.

The ANMM Council, executive, staff and volunteers will use this plan to deliver diverse services for the preservation and promotion of Australia’s great maritime history.

Our assets

Our staff
Our staff are creative, entrepreneurial and collaborative. They are dedicated to the museum, our functions and our audiences. We have a great range of expertise, including specialist curators and conservators, educators, maritime archaeologists, fundraisers and communication professionals.

Our volunteers
Our volunteers are the museum’s best ambassadors and they play vital roles as tour guides, educators, model-makers, conservators and administration assistants. We have over 475 active volunteers at our Sydney site and an additional 1,500 volunteers located across Australia. Our volunteers conduct over 3,000 tours and contribute close to 60,000 volunteer-hours per year.

Our collections
We are leaders in the conservation, interpretation and display of maritime collections, adhering to best practices at all times. We are custodians of over 140,000 documented objects and artefacts, which represent the breadth of Australia’s maritime heritage. We strive to make these available to all Australians through programs, exhibitions and digital services.

Our vessels
We manage, display and interpret our unique fleet of floating vessels including the iconic replica of James Cook’s HMB Endeavour, ex-Royal Australian Navy vessels HMAS Onslow, HMAS Vampire and HMAS Advance and a number of small historic craft including WWII commando vessel MV Krait and Vietnamese refugee boat Tu Do. We dedicate a significant proportion of our resources to conserve our vessels and we use them to provide wide-ranging educational and cultural experiences.

Our site, buildings and facilities
Our architecturally distinctive building and unique location in Sydney’s Darling Harbour include exhibition galleries, restaurant, retail and function spaces, play areas and wharves. We manage our buildings, facilities and ICT systems efficiently to enable access to, and enjoyment of, our collections and fleet.

Our knowledge, skills and experience
We maintain professional expertise in heritage conservation, research, maritime archaeology, curation and collections management, community engagement, government and business relations. We also hold rich library collections which we share with the public.

Our profile and reputation
We put our visitors, communities, business partners and the public at the centre of everything we do. Over the next four years we will focus on activities that significantly raise the profile and reputation of the museum among national and international audiences, peers and decision-makers.
Our environment

In planning for the future, we recognise a number of challenges that may affect our environment and our work. The most immediate challenge is the significant redevelopment in Sydney’s Darling Harbour precinct, where the museum is located. Recognising the likely impact of these construction projects on the level of visitation to the precinct during the first quarter of this plan, the museum will focus on delivering accessible and high quality programs and services to attract local, interstate and international visitors.

We predict significant population growth within our local precinct and increasing demographic diversity of our national and international audiences. Broad technological changes and increased community expectations across the country to participate in the creation of their cultural experiences will also affect the way the museum operates.

We have analysed these challenges and have incorporated appropriate strategies within our plans to manage risks. We will make sound decisions to optimise our strengths and resources, and to transform challenges into opportunities.

We will respond to these challenges by engaging in contemporary issues of relevance and increasing visitation to our museum through educational and inspiring exhibitions and programs.

We will connect to our audiences by enhancing their understanding of Australia’s history, heritage and contemporary issues, with particular focus on the following themes:

- The role of the oceans in Australia’s economic wellbeing, trade and resource exploration;
- Maritime heritage and culture in Australia’s regional areas;
- The history, contemporary significance and future of the Royal Australian Navy;
- The ongoing role of the museum in Indigenous reconciliation;
- The significance of immigration in shaping a contemporary and culturally diverse Australia;
- The health of oceans and its broader environmental implications;
- Australia’s relations with significant partners in the Asia-Pacific region; and
- The museum’s role in representing Australia’s heritage and culture internationally.
Our priorities

Priority 1  Share the national maritime story across Australia
Priority 2  Be a must-visit museum
Priority 3  Support and promote Indigenous maritime heritage
Priority 4  Research, share knowledge and inspire
Priority 5  Forge a strong financial future
Priority 6  Enhance our organisational excellence
Priority 1
Share the national maritime story across Australia

As the national maritime museum, we have a unique responsibility to share the nation’s maritime stories with communities across the country, as well as internationally. These stories include the diverse and distinct maritime histories of communities across Australia’s states and territories.

We recognise that the ways in which audiences engage with museums are changing as people increasingly become more active participants in shaping their cultural experiences, using the latest digital technology to engage with museum programs.

We will employ best practice community research to inform every aspect of our programming and nationwide engagement. Our ongoing support of regional maritime projects and our collaboration with community stakeholders around Australia will ensure public pride and ownership in the museum.

Example 1
Supporting regional and community heritage programs

MMAPSS grants and internships for regional and community organisations

The Maritime Museums of Australia Project Support Scheme (MMAPSS) is one of the museum’s most significant outreach programs. Jointly funded by the museum and the Commonwealth Government, MMAPSS provides grants and in-kind support to non-profit organisations, such as regional and remote museums and historical societies, for projects that conserve and display Australia’s maritime heritage.

One such project supported through MMAPSS was the conservation of the Cape Jaffa Lighthouse in Kingston, South Australia (pictured right), conducted by the National Trust of South Australia. The lighthouse was originally built on the Margaret Brock Reef, where it stood for 100 years before being dismantled and moved ashore in 1974.

Over the next four years, we will work with government, industry and communities to expand the program and increase opportunities for more community groups and programs to receive support.

- The number and quality of outreach projects and travelling exhibitions.
- The number of members and their satisfaction with museum programs and services.
- The number and quality of regional projects supported through our funding base.
Priority 2
Be a must-visit museum

Located within the changing urban, tourist and entertainment precinct of Sydney’s Darling Harbour, we are a formidable part of the cultural and entertainment experiences of people in the city.

We will consolidate and amplify the museum’s key attractions to ensure it remains a ‘must-see’ destination for local, national and international visitors. Through our distinctive architectural design and exhibition spaces, unique vessels, collections and programs we will continue to offer opportunities for discovery, discussion, entertainment and relaxation.

Example 2
Revitalising our site

The new Warships Pavilion

Recognising the need to revitalise our site and to create exciting new experiences for visitors, the museum is building a state-of-the-art Warships Pavilion. With the new pavilion the museum marks the centenary of World War I and commemorates the compelling history of the Royal Australian Navy (RAN).

Through immersive cinematic experiences within the new building, visitors will be offered virtual experiences, putting them ‘on board’ the museum’s HMAS Vampire and HMAS Onslow while at sea and performing the dramatic functions for which they were built.

We envisage that more than half a million people, including over 50,000 school children, will visit the new pavilion each year and learn about the role of the Royal Australian Navy over the last 100 years.
Strategies to achieve outcomes

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

We will measure our success by:

- The number of visitors to our museum location.
- The level of satisfaction of our visitors with the museum collection, programs, facilities and services.
Priority 3
Support and promote Indigenous maritime heritage

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander (ATSI) cultures are central to Australian history.

As the custodian of a significant collection of Indigenous objects and artefacts, we play a pivotal role in ensuring greater national and international understanding of and respect for our unique Indigenous cultures.

We recognise that continued protection and promotion of traditional and contemporary ATSI cultural expressions are crucial for the wellbeing of ATSI peoples, as well as for achieving reconciliation.

Through our programs, exhibitions and employment opportunities we will continue to engage with and support Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples to practise their culture and share their knowledge within and outside their communities.

Strategies to achieve outcomes

Outcome A
Reflect ATSI culture and heritage in museum exhibitions, programs and activities

- Create and enhance pathways for participation of ATSI communities and groups in our programs.
- Recognise and reflect ATSI culture, heritage and languages through our programs, exhibitions and publications.

Outcome B
Support educational, training and cultural initiatives for Indigenous people

- Create employment, training and volunteer opportunities for Indigenous people at the museum.
- Build partnerships with governments, community and industry across Australia to support Indigenous cultural, educational and training programs.

We will measure our success by:

The number of Indigenous programs supported by the museum.

The number of Indigenous internships and traineeships supported by the museum.
Example 3
Supporting Indigenous culture revitalisation projects

Indigenous students learn to build traditional canoes

The museum’s nawi bark canoe-building outreach program introduces Indigenous school students to traditional canoe building techniques. The ANMM nawi program focuses on empowering Indigenous youth and fostering community ties through collaborative bark canoe-building workshops.

Workshops are held to source bark from local areas, make models and ultimately create a full-sized canoe that is launched on water within the local community.

Working with museum staff and local leaders, the students set their own agenda and create their own pathways for personal and cultural growth, finding new connections with their local community and their cultural heritage.

Over the next four years, the ANMM will strengthen our Indigenous programs and support Indigenous people to continue their traditional culture.
Priority 4
Research, share knowledge and inspire

We are committed to research excellence and innovative approaches to knowledge creation that make a significant difference in maritime heritage and museum sectors, and that result in professional and public recognition of our work.

We interpret and care for our collection through research and collaboration. We make our knowledge accessible to as many people as possible through our exhibitions, educational programs, publications and outreach.

We will continue to build upon our knowledge and expertise, particularly in the digital and research areas, to create programs and exhibitions that are meaningful, relevant, inclusive and inspiring.

Example 4
Sharing our knowledge with school children

A new paradigm for learning

Engaging and educating young Australians about maritime history and heritage is central to our role as a museum.

Following on an increasing interest in the use of digital games to teach, motivate and engage 21st century learners, the museum has developed a new educational game, The Voyage.

The Voyage takes the user on a 19th-century journey from London to Van Diemen’s Land where players, as the ship’s Surgeon Superintendent, are rewarded for the number of healthy convicts they deliver to the fledgling British colony. The game is based on detailed historical data, utilising documented ship paths, convict and medical records and diaries. In addition to teaching important historical facts, the game provides opportunities for choice, pathway creation and collaboration.

The game will be used in education programs at the museum’s physical site (also home to two historic tall ships from within the era of the game), the website, via a mobile device or a multi-touch table and in the classroom.

Over the next four years we will continue to augment and broaden classroom learning with creative educational tools and experiences. We will inspire inquiry, independent thinking and appreciation of Australian maritime heritage among Australian school children.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Outcome A</th>
<th>Research projects that underpin the museum’s purpose, programs and services</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Build a research program that supports our ongoing role as the national centre for maritime history.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Consolidate our expertise, resources and strong public interest in archaeology to establish the Maritime Archaeology Research Centre as a leading facility for national and international research.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Collaborate with international partners to reveal, conserve and protect Australian maritime heritage outside our borders.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>

</tr>
<tr>

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Priority 5
Forge a strong financial future

Our vision and goals for the future are bold and ambitious. The long-term success of the museum will depend not only on deploying our creative talent and managing our resources efficiently, but also on effective engagement in entrepreneurial and commercial practices to secure sustainable revenue sources for the museum. We will create meaningful partnerships with supporters and stakeholders to realise our aspirations for growth and exemplary service.

Example 5
Working with our partners

ANMM partnerships deliver WWI exhibition

The museum partnered with the RSL (Queensland Branch) to present the touring exhibition War at Sea – the Navy in WWI, which commemorates the role of the Royal Australian Navy (RAN) in the First World War.

The exhibition draws on the personal accounts of RAN servicemen (including diaries, mementoes, ship’s logs and letters) to tell their stories of bravery and sacrifice amid the drudgery of life at sea. The stories of Australia’s first submarines AE1 and AE2 are included in the exhibition.

Through a four-year sponsorship arrangement with the RSL and significant assistance from the Australia Council and Visions Australia, the exhibition will tour nationally, creating opportunities for thousands of people across the country to visit the exhibition in their local areas and gain a better understanding of the role of the Royal Australian Navy in WWI.

This partnership demonstrates the museum’s capacity and interest in working with partners who share our vision and interests to strengthen our exhibition and programming initiatives. Over the next four years we will build upon and expand our partnerships to deliver better outcomes for the people of Australia.
Strategies to achieve outcomes

</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Outcome B</th>
<th>Strong alternative revenue sources</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Develop an active ANMM Foundation and philanthropic funding to support museum projects, exhibitions and the development of our collection.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Employ effective sponsorship strategies to ensure funding of our programs and exhibitions.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Explore external funding opportunities through grants and other revenue sources to support museum activities.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

We will measure our success by:

Revenue achieved through alternative sources, including sponsorships, grants and philanthropic support.

Number of formal partnerships with government and industry stakeholders within Australia and internationally.
Priority 6
Enhance our organisational excellence

Maximising opportunities and delivering the best possible outcomes require a creative, efficient and progressive organisation. We will develop our people, implement our legal and regulatory obligations and manage our financial resources and assets to ensure our organisation maintains its strength and sustainability.

Example 6
Building a strong workforce capability

ANMM Learning Management System

ANMM is implementing new strategies to enable ongoing training and development of staff and volunteers. The new Learning Management System (LMS) offers comprehensive automated learning packages that staff can complete on the job, according to their individual learning and development plans.

The LMS has significant benefits for staff and the museum. Staff gain valuable skills in areas that are relevant to their roles and their team’s performance, expanding their future professional opportunities.

The museum benefits from the highly cost-effective and flexible way of training, developing and supporting its staff.

When the system is fully implemented we expect to see further improvements in customer service, better work safety practices and productivity improvements. The museum will also be able to select the new or enhanced skills required within our workforce to meet the objectives of this corporate plan and to deliver suitable learning packages in timely and user-friendly ways.
Strategies to achieve outcomes

Outcome A
Skilled, engaged and inspired people and collaborative culture

- Enhance the skills of staff and volunteers and support them to identify with, and successfully contribute to, the goals of the organisation.
- Attract, develop and retain people with the skills and capabilities to build a culture of innovation.
- Strengthen our volunteer program to draw upon the diversity of interests, expertise and cultures of our audiences.

Outcome B
Effective governance and business systems and practices

- Strengthen our systems and processes to ensure compliance, accountability, transparency and probity across all business activities.
- Enhance our evaluation and performance management systems.
- Integrate technology systems and processes to enhance business planning.

Outcome C
Highest standards of safety for our staff, volunteers, visitors and collaborators

- Develop and maintain best practice workplace health and safety, training and hazard identification processes across the museum.
- Continue to integrate health and safety accountabilities into management processes.

We will measure our success by:

- The quantity and quality of training offered through the Learning Management System and the level of user satisfaction with the system.
- The implementation of Work Health and Safety strategies and continuous improvement initiatives.
